United Way ok's 'Jaws' contribution

By ELLIS CUEVAS

The directors of the United Way of Hancock County were unanimous this week in approving a one-time contribution of $300 to the 'Jaws of Life' fund sponsored by the Hancock County Firemen's Association.

The 'Jaws of Life' drive is being conducted throughout Hancock County to finance the purchase of the power rescue equipment needed by emergency personnel, especially in freeing victims of auto crashes.

The Civil Defense office at the Valena C. Jones complex is heading up the drive. The Banks of Hancock County all have 'Jaws' accounts and anyone interested in making a tax-free contribution can do so at their bank.

Donations can also be made by mailing to 'Jaws of Life', P.O. Box 1325 Bay St. Louis, 39520.

J. Norton Haas, president of the Hancock United Way, presided over the meeting with in other businesses discussed the 1978 campaign which surpassed its goal of $35,000 in contributions and pledges for the 1979 funds by $1,300.

A general discussion of the organization was held and sights were set on the next campaign in the Fall for the 1980 funds.

Among those in attendance were Haas, Wayne Ducomb, 1978 campaign chairman; Mrs. C.R. Beyer, Mrs. Ina Piazza, Mrs. Theresa James, Conrad Mauffray, executive director; and Ellis Cuevas.

The United Way directors set the budget for the 1979 funds. The agencies receiving funds from the United Way of Hancock are Hancock County Emergency Relief, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Hancock County Senior Citizens Day Care Center, Red Cross, R.S.V., Catholic Social Services, Gulf Coast Mental Health Center, Hancock County Blood Bank, U.S.O., World Wide Fireman's Doll and Toy Fund, Goodwill Industries and Gulfside Boys Home.

At the meeting, Ducomb was pleased with the response of the community because "the success of the campaign was due to the hard work of the volunteers and generosity of the businesses and residents of Hancock County."

A discussion was held on a campaign chairman for the coming drive and also the naming of several new directors at the next meeting in February.

Waveland Elementary closes

Hancock least affected in Coast flu outbreak

BULLETIN

Classes at Waveland Elementary School are cancelled today and Friday due to an outbreak of sickness which had some 38 percent of that school's students absent Wednesday, Bay St. Louis School Superintendent J. D. McCullough reported.

Waveland is the first Hancock County school to close apparently as a result of an influenza epidemic which has closed down many schools along the Gulf Coast.

"Our three first-grade classes are down to one student in one room, seven in a second, and 12 in the third, with more going home all the time," McCullough said Wednesday afternoon. "Waveland will be closed Thursday and Friday, but all other schools will be open," he added.

By RICH ADAMS

Some but not all Hancock County public and private schools are reporting severe drops in attendance due to an outbreak of influenza sweeping the Gulf Coast and causing school closings in the more populated counties of Harrison and Jackson.

Elementary schools in the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School System and St. Stanislaus College in Bay St. Louis reported increased absenteeism rates which officials at those schools say is caused by the virus.

Both North Bay and Waveland

Elementary Schools reported major drops in attendance.

According to North Bay Principal Billy Sills, 157 of his 623 students were absent Monday.

Council studying bids on school paving jobs

By ELLIS CUEVAS

Necaise Construction Company was apparent low bidder on asphalt surfacing of the parking lot at Bay Senior High, the street behind the high school, and the playground at North Bay Elementary.

Bids were received by the Bay Council Tuesday.

He said the absenteeism rate was well above normal, adding some six teachers were also out of action because of illness.

Waveland Elementary Principal

Buddy Broadway, of Broadway and Seal, civil engineers, hired by the city to prepare plans and specifications, upon his study of the bids opened, recommended acceptance of the Necaise bid of $24,350 as it was a shade under his firm's estimate.

Broadway said, of course, the bid has

Junior High classes temporarily housed

By RICH ADAMS

Students at Bay St. Louis Junior High School resumed work in temporary facilities Tuesday after all courses had been cancelled when a ceiling caved-in on a ninth grade classroom last week.

Approximately three tons of ceiling material fell on a ninth grade classroom Jan. 10 as students were fleeing the room.

Six classrooms at the First Baptist Church's educational center on Main Street in Bay St. Louis are being utilized by the school system, along with the S. J. Ingram building, the Junior High gymnasium, and the school's shop building.

Junior High Principal W. J. Cameron said Tuesday most eighth graders at the school are being taught at the church facilities, while seventh and ninth graders remain at the Junior High.

"Things are going as smooth as we can expect," said Cameron.

"It will take a few days to get into the routine," he added.

Cameron said a major problem was encountered by students after they were asked to empty their lockers to allow work to begin in hallways.

"The students had to get all their textbooks from their lockers and must carry them around to every class," Cameron explained.

The Bay St. Louis Fire Department was summoned to the 56-year-old building Tuesday by school officials "as protection" while students emptied out their lockers.

Cameron said he sent students in groups of 10 or 15 into the halls to empty their lockers.

Cameron said repairs and renovations on ceilings in the building are scheduled to begin Feb. 20.

Stennis Field courts Navy

By LESLIE WILLIAMS

Port and Harbor Commission Director Wilson Webre hopes a Naval aerial mapping ultra-sophisticated 3-airplane-fleet in Maryland will locate at the Hancock County airport rather than in Gulfport.

The Gulfport-Biloxi Regional Airport authority has asked the Navy Oceanography Division to locate the Navy aerial mapping wing and additional Navy personnel from Maryland to the Gulfport airport.

"We hope," said Webre, "the small fleet will locate at Stennis Airfield."

"We have notified officials of NORDA (Naval Ocean Research and Development Activity) of our desire to negotiate, when NORDA's intentions of re-locating the Maryland 3-plane-fleet become serious," the director added. "Yet, we are cognizant of our lack of certain support facilities," he continued.

Admiral Ed Schnyder, Naval Oceanographic Division, is reported looking for a site for the unit if the Navy does not have to build a hanger to house the small fleet.

Captain Charles G. Darrell, commanding officer of NORDA said Wednesday, facilities needed for the 3-airplane-fleet presently exist at the New Orleans airport, and in 1975 when the Navy was planning the move from Maryland to National Space Technology Laboratories in Hancock County, New Orleans was considered as the site for the research aircraft.

He said he does not know if NORDA seriously intends to move its 3-airplane fleet to the Gulf Coast.

"The three airplanes are under the command of the Atlantic Fleet Commander," said Darrell.

"The planes have been converted for surveying, the planes gather data used to construct magnetic anomaly maps. The maps are used to detect submarines in a local range," Darrell said. "The planes will also be used on 'birds-eye-flights,' which detect article patterns."

"This data," he continued, "is used to provide submarine safety."

Basic facilities needed for the small fleet are one very large hanger and lodgings for 100 to 300 Navy personnel who will provide maintenance to the three aircraft, Darrell elaborated.

Manager of the Gulfport-Biloxi Regional Airport Wayne Lindquist, said the airport's commission meet with Navy officials last week to discuss plans to locate the three-plane-fleet.

"We told them we would build facilities for the small fleet," which consists primarily of a large hanger and an apron," said Lindquist.

"Actually we would probably have to construct an entire facility for the Navy," Lindquist continued.

Lindquist added the Navy is considering several sites as a potential base for the ultra-sophisticated P-3's, and the Gulfport airport is in the very preliminary stages of negotiations with the navy.

Gulf billfishes suffering heavy losses to Japanese

Japanese longline fishermen have agreed to limit the number of vessels fishing in U.S. waters of the Gulf of Mexico to no more than 20 at one time.

This concession was made at the request of the Gulf of Mexico Fishery Management Council which is concerned over the incidental kill of marlin and sailfish on the tuna lines.

Foreign vessels are not allowed to keep fishes other than tuna hooked on longlines set within the U.S. 200 mile fishing limit.

Fishes such as billfishes and sharks must be released without being removed from the water. Many fish, however, are already dead.

According to Wayne Swingle, council director, reports of federal observers aboard the foreign vessels showed 369 billfishes hooked in 27 days with 68 percent of them dead on release.

Concern over this high loss of these popular sport fishes spurred the Council to request that the State Department negotiate with the Japanese for a voluntary restriction of the number of vessels fishing in the Gulf at any one time.

Last year the Japanese had over 90 permits to fish longline vessels in the U.S. Gulf of Mexico and Atlantic waters.

The Japanese have agreed to a limit of 24 vessels with permits to fish the Gulf but with only 20 fishing at any one time.

The Council has planning responsibility in management of Gulf fisheries within the 200 mile limit beyond the states' territorial seas.

However, federal legislation which established this authority excluded tuna from control.

Thus, foreign vessels are free to fish for tuna without restriction.

Swingle noted that since tuna lines do catch other fishes, as well as tuna, permits are required for these other fishes even though they may not be retained.

"Our Council feels that U. fishermen should have fir priority to take billfish in U. waters," Swingle said.

"We felt that the Japanese would listen because they are anxious to continue fishing in U.S. waters," he continued.

"Japan has had permits to take about two-thirds of the fish surplus to our needs in

Consumer agent discusses microwave energy usage

"MONEY TALKS"

By Norine Barnes
Microwave ovens are increasing in popularity. About ten percent of all homes in this country now include a microwave oven and that number is likely to increase, since more microwave ovens are now sold than electric ranges.

Cooking small amounts of food, or warming up small quantities of leftovers in a microwave oven is more energy efficient than using a larger, conventional oven.

Energy savings decrease, however, and may result in the use of more energy than a conventional oven, when a microwave oven is used to cook large amounts of food. The input wattage of a microwave oven indicates how much electrical current is needed to run the oven; the output, or cooking wattage, indicates how fast the oven will cook food.

Most microwave ovens have a cooking speed of about 600 watts; some models, which are smaller in size and cooking capacity, have cooking speeds of about 400 to 500 watts.

Cooking wattages are usually listed in a fact booklet that comes with the oven, or on a plate attached to the oven.

Because cooking times vary with the wattage of different ovens, consumers need to follow recipe instructions that come with their particular oven.

If you use recipes from other sources, make sure the cooking times are based on wattages that match your oven.

If the cooking wattages do not match, recipes can be converted.

There is an inverse relationship between cooking time and cooking wattage: as one increases, the other decreases proportionally.

For example, if a recipe requires six minutes of cooking time at 400 watts of cooking power, the same dish can be baked in four minutes using a microwave oven with 600 watts of cooking power.

Small business risk capital reported severely limited

Jerry B. Benigno, executive secretary of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, attended a White House conference on Small Business in Washington, D.C., Jan. 12.

The forum was one of 57 such meetings scheduled throughout the United States at the suggestion of President Carter to identify problems facing small businesses.

Representatives from all states will meet next year in Washington D.C. to discuss the issues.

"The theme of the White House conference, Small Business, The Next Five Years, will be to provide the nation's small businesses, regional groups and the federal government with new ideas and options for the immediate future and into the Twenty-first Century," Ms. Benigno said.

"Issues of prime concern are current limitations on venture and expansion capital for new and growing small businesses. In some instances, tax policies place disproportionate burdens on small businesses," she added. "Small businesses account for more than 50 percent of the gross national product, and over half of all inventions," the chamber official noted.

Persons wishing to place a statement on file may write to The White House Conference on Small Business, 730 Jackson Place, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006.

Delta Expo promises agribusiness updates

Farmers and agribusinessmen who attend the sixth annual Delta Agricultural Exposition in Cleveland Jan. 30-31 will get the latest information on producing and marketing cotton, soybeans and rice.

Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service (MCES) officials who sponsor the event expect Delta Expo to draw an audience of several thousand from Mississippi and surrounding states.

Repeated simultaneous educational sessions will feature experts on economics, varieties, seed quality, fertility, weed control, water management, insect control and marketing.

"All educational sessions will be repeated on the morning and afternoon of each day," said George Berry, district agent, MCES.

"This will allow growers to attend all sessions during one visit to the Expo. Growers will also get an opportunity to talk to the experts about their production and marketing problems," he said.

Nearly 100 exhibits, including the most advanced farming equipment, will be on display. Two displays expected to attract much attention are a computerized display of commodity markets and a "systems approach" to farming in which farmers feed detailed information about their farmlands and operation into a computer to learn what crops or crop combinations will thrive in specific sites.

The public is invited to extend Expo activities.

R for your child's safety

A child's mind is a highly impressionable one, and many of his actions are merely an imitation of what he has seen his parents do, says Dr. Albert H. Domm, child safety specialist and former medical director of the Prudential Insurance Co. Noting this, he warns that parents who show disregard for safe driving fundamentals in front of their children may be steering them toward a serious accident later in life.

"Watching daddy drive the family car is a delight for most youngsters," says Dr. Domm. "But if he drives recklessly, lasting impressions are left on the youthful mind which may be difficult to correct in later years."

He reminds parents that driver training begins not with that first course in high school, but from the very first day a child rides in the family car. "Parents should be aware of this and make sure they are careful and considerate drivers at all times," he cautions.

Dr. Domm stresses that parents should practice good safety habits in every situation, not merely while driving. "Indeed," adds the doctor, "all phases of safety education should start with the parents setting good safety examples for their tiny ones."

Pass youth remains in fair condition

Twelve-year-old Shannon Stockstill of Pass Christian was reported in fair condition at Gulfport Memorial Hospital Wednesday after being struck by a car in Bay St. Louis Saturday evening.

Bay St. Louis Police Chief Douglas Williams said no charges were filed against Russell F. Sutton, 54, 103 St. Joseph St., Waveland, driver of the car which struck Ms. Stockstill about 7:40 p.m. Saturday.

The girl was struck on South Beach Boulevard in Bay St. Louis while attending a beach party, Williams reported.

Williams said Ms. Stockstill was taken to Hancock General Hospital in Bay St. Louis by Mobile Medic following the accident, and was later transferred to Gulfport.

She reportedly sustained multiple fractures of the lower extremities, undetermined internal injuries, and body and facial abrasions.

Federal Land Bank doubles agriculture scholarships

The Federal Land Bank of New Orleans will offer two agricultural scholarships each year to Auburn University, Mississippi State University and Louisiana State University, beginning with the fall semester of 1979.

Each scholarship will amount to $600 per year over a two-year period (freshman and sophomore years) provided the student meets scholastic requirements.

The Land Bank previously offered one scholarship per year to each University.

Land Bank scholarships are limited to residents of Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana, and two scholarships are awarded for each state. Selections are made by the scholarship committee of each university.

In order to receive a scholarship, a student must have attained grades to rank in the upper 30 percent of the current year's high school graduating class, and must have demonstrated leadership qualities.

Scholarship recipients must enroll in a college of agriculture in agricultural education, or in home economics.

The purpose of a Land Bank scholarship is to educate young people for positions of leadership on the farm, in educational work, or in business related to agriculture," said Joe G. Spell, president of the Federal Land Bank Association of Hattiesburg.

We want to give the most deserving high school seniors the opportunity to have the finest agricultural instructors and facilities," he added.

High school seniors wishing more information on the Federal Land Bank scholarship program should see their high school principal, vocational agriculture teacher, county extension agent, or contact Spell, or write the Dean of Agriculture at Auburn University, Mississippi State University or Louisiana State University.

The Federal Land Bank was organized to provide a dependable source of long-term credit to farmers through its 34 associations in Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana. The Land Bank is owned by its farmer-members and operates without Federal funds.

Legal Secretaries plan Bosses Night

Inter-personal relationships in both large and small offices and a discussion of personal, public and human relations highlighted a Jan. 10 meeting of the Hancock and Harrison Counties Legal Secretaries Association.

Patsy Bishop, governor, encouraged members to attend the state Spring Board meeting January 27 and 28 to be hosted by the Jackson County Legal Secretaries Association in Pascagoula.

Chairmen approved include Patsy Bishop, Boss of the Year; Donna Cave, scholarship; M.L. Tootle, Legal Secretary of the Year; Gladys Brown, employment. Donna Cave gave a report on the annual Christmas welfare project of furnishing food and clothing to a needy family.

Applications for a scholarship awarded by the association have been mailed to all high schools on the coast. Deadline for returning the applications is January 31.

Frances Favre, Bosses Night chairman, said the event will be held in March. Gini Myers is serving as co-chairman on the committee.

Marketing specialist suggests grapefruit

One of the brightest notes at fruit counters now is large mounds of golden grapefruit.

Heavy with juice, today's grapefruit are so sweet and flavorful you will never need to add sugar or any other embellishment to have something truly delightful to the taste, says Ann Rushing, marketing specialist, Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

"Calorie-watchers and calorie-seekers all can enjoy grapefruit," continues the specialist.

"Watchers are aware that one-half medium grapefruit contains about 40 calories; seekers know that it is important to make each calorie count. The natural sugar of grapefruit is a ready source of energy. Valuable amounts of vitamin C and other important nutrients are also found in the fruit."

Grapefruit are available throughout the year. From January through April is the peak period when the eating quality of grapefruit is at its best.

Supplies are also the heaviest and prices the lowest.

Select grapefruit that are firm and heavy for their size; heaviness indicates a large amount of juice.

Choose thin-skinned fruit with no soft spots. Don't hesitate to buy grapefruit with russet patches; many people feel this indicates the best flavor.

All grapefruit are fully mature when they are shipped, so do not assume that a green color indicates immaturity.

Skin color is not a good guide for ripeness.

As in all citrus, a grapefruit tree has blossoms, immature fruit and ripe fruit on it all at the same time.

In the spring, extra chlorophyll produced for the new bloom may tinge the already ripened fruit with green coloring.

This natural process is called "regreening" and in no way affects the quality, explains Mrs. Rushing.

Weight-watchers - whether they want to gain weight, lose weight or keep their established weight - will find grapefruit an excellent treat, not a treatment.

LEARN BY DOING BUILD FOR FUTURE

U.S. forests yielded 13.5 billion cubic feet of wood last year to provide Americans with housing and furniture, textbooks and grocery sacks, plywood paneling and photographic film.

The nation's 718 million acres of forest land are the source of countless products used every day - goods essential to the American way of life.

Conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service and supported by Weyerhaeuser Company Foundation, the program encourages 4-H members 9 to 19 to develop skills in identifying, selecting and using different types of wood and wood products.

Young people, in the 4-H wood science program are learning to - by doing to appreciate the wide variety of wood and fiber products that originate from the forest.

4-Hers can begin a wood science project by making nail point designs or pencil holders, then go on to build furniture, cabinets or greenhouses. As they progress, they grow adept at safely using and caring for woodworking tools.

The program stresses the importance of environmental quality and protection and the wise use of natural resources. It also provides opportunities to tour pulp mills, fiberboard manufacturing operations and lumberyards for a broader understanding of economics and careers in the forest products industry.

Young people can learn more about the program from their County Extension Agents.

VA news

JANUARY, 1979

For the first time in history, the Veterans Administration is issuing personal identification cards to more than two million service-disabled veterans to emphasize their top priority in obtaining treatment at VA medical centers and outpatient clinics.

Some 237,000 ex-service members live in foreign countries and U.S. territorial possessions; 163,000 of them in Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands.

The Veterans Administration operates one of the largest life insurance programs in the world, administering some $97 billion in life insurance policies for 7.9 million veterans and military service personnel.

On February 14, a national salute to hospitalized veterans will bring sports and entertainment stars and top government officials in contact with patients in Veterans Administration medical centers.

VA's hospital and medical care system - the nation's largest - provides inpatient and ambulatory care to some 185,000 beneficiaries each day, the greatest number in agency history.

California is home to more veterans - more than 3.3 million of them - than any other state. New York trails with 2.5 million veterans, while Pennsylvania, Texas, Illinois and Ohio - in that order - have between 1.5 and 1.7 million veterans each.

Q. How precious is natural gas? A. How long is one million years?

An eternity of 100 centuries. That's how long it took nature to manufacture diamonds, coal and natural gas, the cleanest and most desirable of all the fossil fuels.

More than 30 percent of all energy consumed in the United States comes from natural gas. More than 40 percent of energy consumed in industry is derived from this gift of nature. And most important, it is domestic — not imported, not subject to the uncertainties of international disorder.

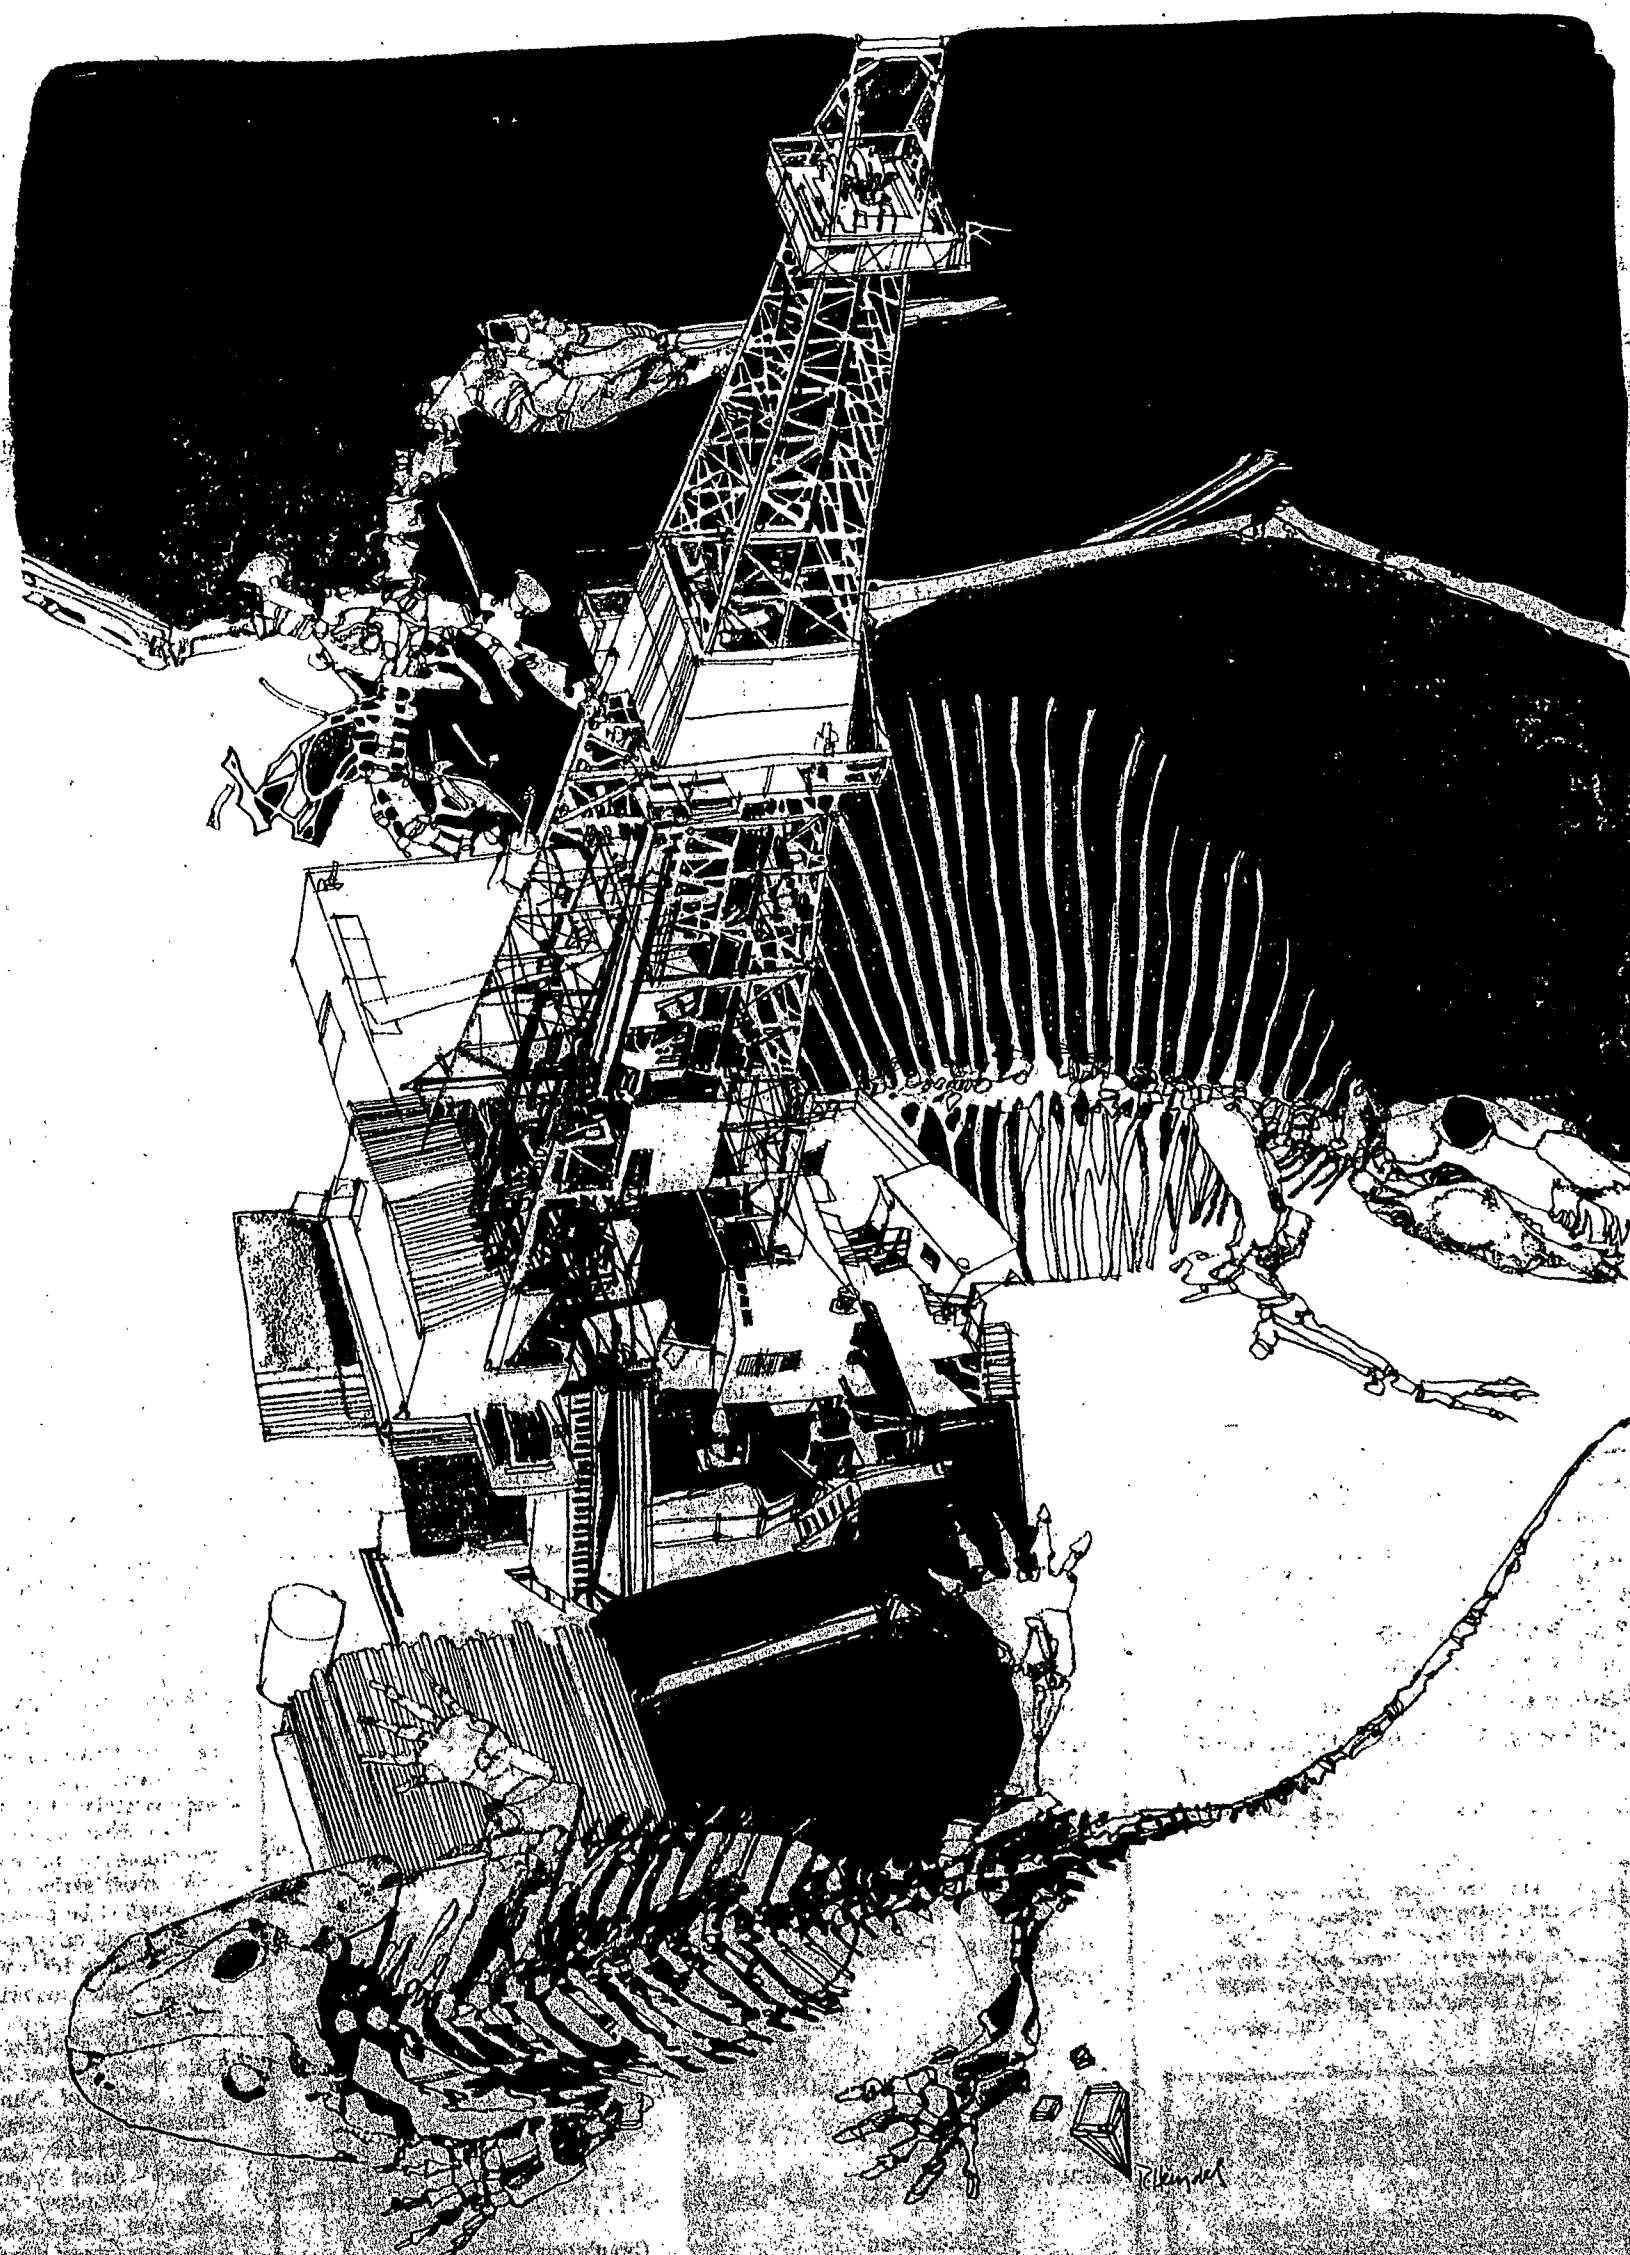

Unfortunately, the nation has been using up more natural gas than it has replaced.

At United Gas we're working to acquire new reserves wherever they can be found — Canada, Alaska, Mexico, the Atlantic Coast, the Gulf of Mexico. We're investigating liquefied petroleum gas (LPG) and synthetic natural gas (SNG). And in the research projects, work proceeds on coalbed degasification and geopressured/geothermal projects.

If we're careful, nature's great legacy will last us a long time.

Just think of it as something precious — like diamonds.

Editorials

NEW JAIL IN PICAYUNE—The City of Picayune and also the City of Poplarville are building new jails, and both are being financed through grants with no increase in taxes to the residents. What about a new jail in Hancock County? We are told funds are available for the asking if the proper officials make the necessary applications.

Two new jails, but not in Hancock County

Two communities bordering Hancock County, Picayune and Poplarville, have new jails under construction. The jail in the City of Picayune will be completed in a few weeks at a cost of more than $400,000. The jail in Poplarville, the Pearl River County jail, is scheduled later this year for completion at a cost of over $500,000.

We know right off you will say what does that have to do with Hancock County. Well, the big thing is the fact that these two jails are all being federally funded, paid for by the government. We are fully aware federal funds are coming from us, the taxpayers.

The residents of Picayune and Poplarville are not going to have to pay anymore local or federal taxes by having the new jails.

The residents of Hancock County are in need of a new jail. Our most recent Grand Jury last week emphasized the dire need, as have several Grand Juries before them.

We would like to know just what we are waiting for. It would be a lot better for our officials to go about building a new jail without big Uncle coming in and saying we have to right now.

As we have said before, it will take a combined effort by our Hancock County Board of Supervisors, the Cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland, assisted by the sheriff and two police departments to succeed in securing funds for a new jail.

There was a time when the county and both the city of Bay St. Louis and Waveland had jails, and of course further back Pearlrington, Kiln, Gainesville, etc. had jails, but we feel there is no necessity of having more than one jail in Hancock County.

The Courthouse is right now in dire need of room for the storage of important records. Books upon books are stacked upon each other, for a lack of space to be properly stored and available to the public.

If a new jail were built, the old jail could possibly be used to aide in the lack of adequate space for record storing.

We hope our elected officials have the foresight to think of the future, secure every available federal dollar to keep Hancock County on par with our surrounding neighbors.

All of our officials are aware of the growth projected for Hancock during 1979 and the anticipated growth in future years. Let's plan now for that growth.

Hancock County is on the threshold of greatness, let all of us work to make Hancock the best County in the State and even in the Nation.

Your opinion is needed

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce is conducting a community service public opinion poll to determine if you would prefer one school district in the county.

There has been a lot of talk in recent months about the need of one school system, and a lot of talk by many others about continued use of two school systems in the county.

We would like to ask you to perform a Community service by filling out one of the poll forms and either mail it to or drop it off at the Chamber of Commerce office on US-90 in Bay St. Louis.

To The Editor

School critic reports threat

The Editor,

Day after day one hears about contagious, curable and noncurable diseases - cancer, heart trouble, measles, mumps, Asian flu, Russian flu, and on and on.

Today, Jan. 12, I have been threatened by the carrier of another common disease that goes all the way back to Adam and Eve.

So far, no one has even mentioned a deterrent much less a cure for this killer. Its name? "GUILT."

We all more or less live with it in our daily doings.

Occasionally it is so well nurtured it grows to be a conniving monster.

Suddenly the carrier of this disease realizes a crisis is at hand and rather than be exposed to the truth he prefers to resort to sneaky violent retaliation.

For years I have been allowed to use this column to criticize our politicians and some of their actions.

I have criticized the milk industry even though I was a part of it for half a century until recent retirement.

And, yes, I have certainly been a long time critic - a loner until recently of our Bay-Waveland school system.

As a parent and a tax payer, I have felt those criticisms were my responsibility as well as my God given privilege - very few people 'openly' agreed.

Very few times have any of my letters been publicly answered.

When they were, some were in agreement; others weren't, but I held no malice.

Twice my business was threatened. (Not to me in person, but behind my back.) A short time back I was called and 'threatened' with legal actions by a man that was honorable enough to first identify himself.

Numerous phone calls have otherwise been in agreement until the one today.

As I sat at home today without a worry in the world, my phone rang at 10:00 a.m. and I answered it.

My wife said it was for me. When I said the customary, "Hello, I was at first amused, and then suddenly dumfounded by the following quote: 'Haven't you got anything to do beside writing letters, criticizing people? You have been making passes at me for a long time and if you don't shut up I am going to shut you up.' End quote - without identifying himself, this worm hung up.

This threat followed a Jan. 9 letter I wrote criticizing the school system.

Since I am 99 percent positive of my identification of the voice there is very little or no doubt in my mind that he is "in" our school system.

No, I am not about to shut up. After years of being a God-fearing loner this old rolling stone has begun to gather a bit of moss.

Concerned young parents and conscientious teachers, we are going to ask for and expect to start getting some honest answers concerning our schools.

Personal threats I fear not. But I have to admit I worry about property I can't protect 24 hours each day.

Yes fellow - I say fellow because it was a male voice I heard - I do have other things to do, but what I do is of my own free will as a God-fearing American.

I owe nothing but respect, good will and honesty to my fellow man. I would like to get same in return.

I would like to ask the people of Bay St. Louis and Waveland one simple question: Do we want monarchism or Americanism for our children?

Recalls Burke-Manieri bout

January 3, 1979

The Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis.

Gentlemen:

A recent article in the N. O. Times-Picayune referred to the death of Marty Burke in California where he has been living with his son Paul, television and movie star.

Just thought you might want to mention the great day he gave the Gulf Coast many years ago when, as light heavy weight champ of the South, he fought the Bay's Russell Manieri.

Manieri had just been honorably discharged from the U.S. Navy as the nineteen year old light heavy champ of the Combined Grand Fleets anchored in the English Channel at the close of WW I.

A very few of us can recall that great day when the L&N, good old L&N ran not one but two special trains from Ocean Springs to N.O.

I am the proud possessor of a 'broadside' framed (which always attracts favorable attention) of that great day, September 8, 1919.

Sincerely,
J. T. Swoop

An idea whose time has come

To the Editor:

It is deplorable that conditions in school system have deteriorated to the point where the school children are endangered.

The ceiling collapse at Bay Junior High is one more example of building problems in the system.

The rotting trailers at North Bay and the six-year-old roof needing replacement at Waveland Elementary School are other examples.

Isn't there any preventive maintenance in the system?

It seems that the community is being forced into a bond issue through inept administration.

Sure, money is needed to keep up the schools, but maintaining the buildings on an emergency basis is no way to do business.

While the Bay St. Louis system is "falling apart," the County schools are bursting at the seams with too many students.

Both systems need improvements, but it seems foolish to spend large sums of money in either system at this time.

We should just seriously consider establishing one efficient system with competent trustees and capable administrators.

Consolidation is an idea whose time has come, and the issue should be decided before any more money is spent in either place.

Sincerely yours,
Edwin J. Pasciak

Raps school management

January 16, 1979

To the Editor:
Sea Coast Echo

I have read the accounts of the near disaster at Bay Junior High School and find myself thoroughly confused.

Was the condition of the ceiling previously reported to the administration?

In the Sea Coast Echo of Jan. 11, Mr. Michael Hammi, the teacher, is quoted as saying, "I won't say yes and I won't say no, call Mr. Cameron."

The Echo's "reliable source" reported Cameron had told Superintendent McCullough the day before the accident that there was a crack in the ceiling.

Cameron said "definitely not."

Our school children are suffering now, emotionally from such an upsetting experience, physically (one in particular was actually injured), and academically now that school is to be held in makeshift classrooms for the next four to six weeks.

The near tragic events of the past week at Bay Junior High School have, in my opinion, highlighted the lack of proper management existing in our city schools.

Sincerely,
Charles F. Gottschalk

Wagner's inquire into gas prices

November 20, 1978

The Honorable Trent Lott M.C.
Washington, D.C. 20013

Dear Congressman Lott:

I write to you as City Councilman, 4th Ward of Bay Saint Louis, and at the request of Mayor Bennett and my four fellow Councilmen. We need your assistance in dealing with a difficult local problem.

The City of Bay Saint Louis owns and operates its own natural gas distribution system as a part of our Utilities System. We purchase bulk natural gas from United Gas Pipeline Co. and sell it to our citizens as a retail.

Cost of sales is not broken down between gas, water, sewer and garbage, but is allocated over the Utility System as a whole. It has been the City's custom in the past to pass on increases in gas costs to consumers by the same percentage to the retail rate as we are billed by our supplier.

A group of "Concerned Citizens" has appeared before our Council in regular session to protest continued increases.

This group has presented petitions containing 75 signatures asking for reduction in gas rates. They expect to secure additional signatures and will no doubt do so.

The Council is frustrated. We have no other practical source from which to purchase gas. We know the general inflation, increased exploration costs, and deregulation all work to raise the costs of our supplier.

At the same time, we are sensitive to the plight of our consumers and citizens who are pressed for one of the basic necessities.

The "Concerned Citizens" group has sought relief from the Mississippi Public Service Commission. Mr. John Dale has advised Mayor Bennett in a letter dated October 30, 1978 that the "Public Service Commission has no jurisdiction or power whatever with respect to prices or rates which United Gas Pipeline Co., Inc. may charge the City of Bay Saint Louis for natural gas."

He further states that these rates are now fixed by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission in Washington.

We - the Mayor and Council - ask that you intervene in our behalf and in behalf of all the citizens of Bay Saint Louis and seek for us simple, brief, readable information from the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. We need to know:

1. The extent of their authority and responsibility to regulate the wholesale price of gas to us.

2. The make-up of the Commission and its line of responsibility to the Congress and to the electorate.

3. The kind of information it seeks from applicants for rate increases in general and specifically the information sought from United Gas Pipeline with respect to our rate.

4. On what basis did it make decisions for the most recent increases.

5. What options to rate increases were considered.

6. What effects were believed inevitable if no increases were granted.

We most seriously request that the information be presented in a concise manner and in very plain English.

We enclose for your review in this matter the following support information:

A. Letter of Mayor Bennett to John Dale dated October 24, 1978.

B. Letter of John Dale to Mayor Bennett dated October 30, 1978.

C. Outline of "Concerned Citizens Agenda" dated November 9, 1978.

D. Newspaper clipping "Times Picayune" dated November 10, 1978.

E. Newspaper clipping "Sea Coast Echo" dated November 12, 1978.

F. Ordinances of City of Bay St. Louis setting gas prices.

Your assistance in this matter is appreciated.

Sincerely,
Fred Wagner

Honorable Fred Wagner
Council, 4th Ward,

Dear Fred:

I am enclosing herein a report which I received in your behalf from the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. I am sure you will find Mr. Williams' letter to be self-explanatory, as he reviews the specific questions which were raised.

As I stated before, I can understand the difficult situation in which the City has been placed involving the constant rise in gas prices. Upon reviewing the enclosed, should you feel I can be helpful to you in any further way, please let me know.

With best wishes, I am

Self-explanatory Commission reply

Honorable Trent Lott
308 Cannon House
Office Building
Washington, DC 20515

Dear Representative Lott:

This is in response to your letter requesting answers to questions raised by Councilman Fred Wagner of the City of Bay Saint Louis.

The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) and its staff are intimately familiar with the inflation in natural gas prices and recognize our responsibilities in containing those prices within the guidelines established by law.

The energy shortage, increasing costs of finding new gas supplies, and the general inflation have exerted extreme pressures on natural gas prices.

The social implications of these prices in our energy dependent society are enormous, as suggested by Mr. Wagner.

The FERC regulates the wholesale prices that interstate pipeline companies, like United Gas Pipeline Company (United) can charge distributors, like Bay Saint Louis.

United, as a middleman, neither produces nor consumes gas. It pays producers and other pipeline companies for supplies of natural gas, which it then transports and sells to distributors at the wholesale price established by the FERC.

Wholesale prices set by the FERC must be just and reasonable; that is, they must be based on costs shown to be prudently incurred by the seller and must include a fair return on net investment by the stockholders.

In regulating these wholesale prices, the FERC follows procedures which are grounded on a body of law and have been affirmed over the years by the courts.

It may help Mr. Wagner if we explained the basic outline of these procedures.

Pursuant to rules established by the FERC, interstate pipeline companies who wish to increase their rates must file with the Commission an application requesting that increase.

Once the application is accepted for filing, the Commission gives public notice of it, thus affording all interested persons the opportunity to become parties to the proceeding.

According to our records, the City of Bay Saint Louis receives the pertinent portions of all rate increase applications made by United, and complete copies are available upon request.

The Commission staff analyzes the application and, after review of it and other information obtained from the company, reaches its own conclusions as to what constitutes just and reasonable rates.

In many instances, evidence is presented by the company, the Commission staff, and other parties in an open hearing before an administrative law judge.

Pending the outcome of the hearing, the Commission may delay the effective date of the rate increase for five months.

If the Commission does not reach a decision in that time, then the proposed rates go into effect, pending the decision. All amounts ultimately judged to be unreasonable are subject to refund with interest.

After the open hearings are completed and other due process requirements are met, the Commission prescribes the rates the company may charge.

If the company has not justified its requested rate, then the Commission establishes the rates on the basis of proven costs.

If the rates the company charged during the interim are higher than the just and reasonable rates the Commission approves, then the Commission orders appropriate refunds.

Our response to Mr. Wagner's questions are as follows:

1. The FERC has complete authority and responsibility to regulate the wholesale price of natural gas sold by United to Bay Saint Louis within the laws established for that purpose. Appeals from rulings of the FERC may be made to the Federal courts.

2. The FERC is composed of five members appointed by the President of the United States with the advice and consent of the United States Senate. A staff of approximately 1,200 persons assists the Commission in carrying out its responsibilities. The line of responsibility from the electorate runs through the President and the Senate (elected) to the five Commissioners (appointed). The enclosed folder may be helpful in explaining the functions of FERC.

3. The Commission staff analyzes the application, which, if it is an application for a general rate increase, must include an accounting of actual costs experienced by the company during the most recent 12-month period, as adjusted for changes which are known and measurable with reasonable accuracy at the time of the filing.

In addition, the staff inspects, analyzes, and audits United's books of accounts and records. Specific information requested and obtained from United relates to cost, revenues, gas transactions, and methodology.

In addition to requesting general rate increases, United also periodically requests rate increases in order to pass on to its customers the increase in prices it pays to producers and other gas pipeline companies for its own supplies of gas.

4. The Commission's most recent decisions apply to rates in effect in 1974 and 1975. Rates charged by United during those years were reduced and refunds were ordered.

Decisions for the increases were based on costs, revenues, and operations judged to be just and reasonable.

As illustrated in a recent open hearing on United's rates, the price which United paid for gas rose from 21.57 cents per thousand cubic feet (Mcf) in 1971 to 67.91 cents per Mcf in 1976.

During the same period, revenues received from all Town Border customers, such as Bay Saint Louis, increased from 31.05 cents per Mcf to 79.71 cents per Mcf.

Rates applicable after 1975, including the present rate of $1.63 per Mcf, are in effect subject to refund.

They are still pending and will undoubtedly be reduced below the levels claimed by United.

Much of the price increase may be attributed to the high cost of finding new gas far out in the Gulf of Mexico and the high cost of transporting that gas onshore to market.

5. Options to rate increases include rate decreases or no change in rates. Because costs have increased relative to sales volumes, these options would produce the adverse effects indicated below.

6. Inevitable effects of a ruling by the FERC that no rate increases should be granted are those which logically result when income fails to cover costs:

A. demise in the company's ability to adequately service the public in direct proportion to the income shortfall. The specific effects include the following:

(a) A shortage of internally generated funds to find or purchase new gas supplies, which are essential to continue service at present levels (United may not be able to purchase new gas supplies if no rate increases were granted at all);

(b) inability to borrow funds to find or purchase new gas supplies;

(c) further gas supply deficiencies;

(d) curtailment of gas deliveries to Bay Saint Louis and other customers; and

(e) failure of United to meet its debt obligations. Before these effects would occur, United would be forced to appeal to the Courts for confiscation of private property, with a result no different than if the cost justified rate had been allowed in the first place.

I trust this response is helpful to Mr. Wagner. I am well aware of the huge increases in the wholesale prices of natural gas during the past few years and the burden cast on the consumer who must ultimately pay for all those costs.

The Commission and its staff, however, consistently oppose and will continue to aggressively resist unwarranted increases not supported by prudently incurred costs.

COMMON CAUSE

Jere Nash of Greenville, executive director of Common Cause of Mississippi and Louisiana, is Howard Lett's guest on Mississippi ETV's "Lett's Look At It" at 7 p.m. Monday, January 22.

The passenger service would extend from Jacksonville to New Orleans, said Waveland Mayor John Longo Jr.

Representing Hancock County at the meeting with officials of the U.S. Department of Transportation will be Don Murray of Broadway and Seals, county engineers.

Mayor Larry Bennett will represent Bay St. Louis and Ward One Alderman Barbara Rappold will represent Waveland.

The 1:30 p.m. meeting will be at the Electric Power Building in Gautier.

Mayor Longo said he would like to see operation of the Southern Crescent rail service along the Coast.

Amtrak last year acquired the Southern Crescent previously operated by Southern Railways.

The Crescent's present route extends from New Orleans to Washington via Slidell, La., Hattiesburg and Atlanta.

Steve Evans, former railroad employee and a director of National Association of Railroad Passengers, was reportedly told the Department of Transportation is considering rerouting the Southern Crescent along the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

"I think acquiring a passenger railway service along the Gulf Coast is worthy of an attempt," asserted Mayor Longo.

"I think," he continued, "there is a desire of more people to travel by rail."

School vote location issue elaborated

By RICH ADAMS

Bay St. Louis School officials and Waveland's Mayor John Longo emphasized Wednesday the March 3 voting for a new Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School Board member will not be limited to Waveland residents.

They re-emphasized the election will be held in Bay Senior High School to comply with state law.

According to Bay School Superintendent J. D. McCullough, the March 3 election for a school board member to fulfill the unexpired term of Jean Townsend must be held at the senior high school on the date specified due to a 1972 state law.

Bay school patrons had expressed discontent with the school board's resolution to conduct the election at the senior high school, apparently under the assumption the election was for a Waveland representative to the school board.

The concerned patrons felt the election, if for a Waveland board member, should take place at the Waveland Community Center or Waveland Elementary School.

However, McCullough said the election is for a board member representing the area outside Bay St. Louis, including "all of Waveland and all citizens living outside the corporate limits of Bay St. Louis but within the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District."

He said that area includes property on Hwy. 903 to Bayou LaCroz, Shoreline Park, and other areas north of US-90.

He also quoted the law upon which the board's resolution is based—Mississippi Code, Section 37-7-215—which states: "All such elections shall be held at the school house in that district. If there be in such district an elementary school building and a high school building at different locations, the election will be held at the high school building."

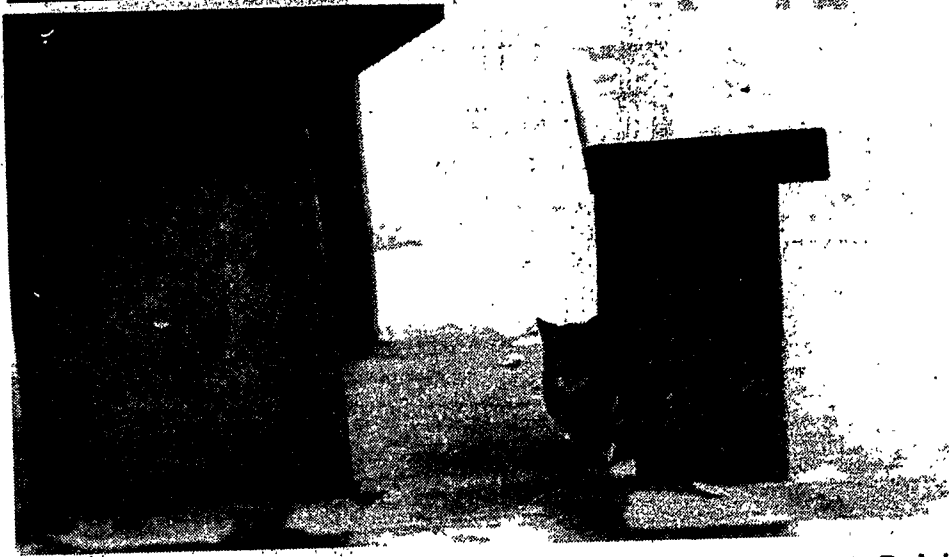

"We have to go with what the law says," McCullough added.

He said the election will be conducted Saturday, March 3 between 2 p.m. and 5 p.m., as instructed by the law.

Waveland Mayor John Longo said the election will be for a member to represent the school district's population living outside the Bay St. Louis city limits, and not just for Waveland residents only.

"People in Waveland are fighting for a representative, but we still do not have one," Longo said.

He said the area covered in which citizens will vote includes Waveland, portions of Shoreline Park, and areas near Hwy. 603.

COLD AND WET weather of late has narrowed down users of Buccaneer State Park in Waveland to a very few such as this feline permanent resident who turns a vacant picnic bench into a shelter from the rain. (Staff photo-Randy Ponder)

Partial street closings promised during projects

BY ELLIS CUEVAS
A Small Cities hearing was conducted by the Bay St. Louis Commission Council Tuesday with another hearing scheduled Monday at 5 p.m.
Ronnie Murray, Gulf Regional Planning Commission representative who was asked to help in the Small Cities Project for 1979, outlined the project area to the Council.
The project area is comprised of the 500 blocks of deMontuzin, 800 feet sewer and 800 feet water facilities; State Street, 1056 feet sewer, 2640 feet water facilities and 2640 feet subsurface drainage; St. John, 2640 feet sewer facilities; and Easterbrook, 1590 feet water facilities.

Under the Small Cities Program, Bay St. Louis is currently upgrading sewer and water facilities on Washington, Sycamore and Keller in the 500 blocks. Murray said if the funds are granted the sewer service could be run up to property owners' homes.

Mrs. L. L. Ward of 538 St. John Street expressed concern over possibility of the streets being closed for the work if monies were granted.

Council President James Thrifflay said, "The street would not be completely closed as far as I know, probably one side at a time if we get funds for the project."

Councilman Fred Wagner complimented Murray on the clarity of his presentation to the Council.

The survey showed 89 percent of the residents of the area are low income, which Murray said should help considerably in securing the funds from Housing Urban Development (HUD).

A breakdown of the project cost, by Murray, were as follows: deMontuzin $42,000; State $39,100; St. John, $74,000; and Easterbrook, $23,000.

The total project costs are estimated at $308,300, which includes contingencies, engineering, administration, sewer facilities, water facilities, tie-ins and drainage.

Murray said the limit on the amount the City can apply is $500,000, so a proposed street repairs project for the four streets must also be supplemented at an estimated total of $91,000.

Harold Saucier was also among those at the hearing on behalf of his mother Carmelita Saucier, a resident of the area.

Saucier's big concern is repair of the streets after the sewer, water and drainage are completed.

Saucier mentioned the current condition of the 500 block of Main Street as being an example.

Councilman Pete Benvenuti reminded him that this current council did not have anything to do with the Main Street project since it was started under the prior administration.

"The only thing we have to do is accept the job, and we haven't done that and are not going to until the problems are corrected," said Benvenuti.

Councilman Harry Farve commented, "All we did was sign the work order for the job to get started, and we had to do that."

Murray told the Council the pre-application had to be filed by January 29.

Influenza...

Magee said reports that 30 percent of that school's students were absent Tuesday were "questionable."

"High absenteeism rates at this time of year are not unusual, but I question the 30 percent figure...it is actually much less than that," he explained.

Bay School Superintendent J. D. McCulloch said Wednesday absenteeism at the schools had dropped to a 16 percent level from a 19.5 percent recorded Tuesday.

"There is no chance the schools will close if attendance keeps improving as it is," McCulloch said.

At St. Stanislaus, Brother Paul Mulligan said the absentee rate at that school is "three times the normal rate."

He said some 60 of St. Stanislaus' 630 students were ill with the virus Tuesday, adding many students attended classes ill last week because exams were conducted at that time.

An official at Annunciation Catholic School in Kiln said attendance was not considerably affected by the virus, but added she received a call Monday from church officials in Biloxi instructing her to close the school if the absentee rate reached one-third of the school's enrollment.

She reported only eight students were absent Monday, most of those from a second grade classroom.

A spokesman for St. Clare's Catholic School in Waveland said some 25 of the 197 students at that school were absent last week.

Hancock North Central Principal Thad Haskins said HNC schools were "hit badly" Monday as 246 students were reported absent, but added attendance was normal by Tuesday.

"We called most of the parents, and the students were out with the flu," Haskins said.

Principal J. D. Penton at Charles B. Murphy Elementary School in Pearlman reported no drop in attendance, but does not consider his school immune to effects of the virus.

"We have not been hit, yet, but we might get it tomorrow...I just don't know," Penton said.

He added absenteeism has been in the neighborhood of some seven percent of the student body this week.

Gulfview Elementary Principal Harlan Hill said absenteeism is "a little above normal, about 15-20 percent," but said no major changes have occurred in attendance.

A spokesman for Our Lady's Academy in Bay St. Louis said effects of the virus are beginning to show on that school, adding Biloxi officials said the school could close its doors when officials here feel the illness has reached insurmountable proportions.

"I'd have to talk to our principal to find out if we will close today...but he's out with the flu," the spokesman said.

Officials at Bay Catholic Elementary said 30 percent of students there were ill Monday, but added enrollment is returning to normal.

Asked if the school was in danger of being temporarily closed as others have been, the official said all teachers were present and added she did not believe the virus was the cause of the absences.

An official from Christ Episcopal Day School in Bay St. Louis said that school has "not been hit hard" by the virus, and reported "minimal absenteeism."

"We're among the lucky ones," she added.

A spokesman for Coast Episcopal High School in Pass Christian said absenteeism has not increased at that school, adding this week is exam week and students are coming to the tests even though some are suffering effects of the flu.

"It is hard to say how many are sick," said the spokesman.

Pass Christian Municipal School Assistant Superintendent George Watson said absentee rate at that school was slightly higher than 10 percent.

"The rate is usually seven percent...the rise is not unusual," Watson said.

Jannelle McLain, RN, of the Hancock County Health Department's Bay St. Louis office, said "symptoms of this strain of flu are typical of other virus symptoms."

She said fever, muscular aches and pains, and a general feeling of malaise are evident in victims of the illness.

She added that pneumonia could follow a bout with the virus and could prove dangerous.

"If these people recover the flu without any after effects, it will not prove to be too bad," Ms. McLain said.

The nurse said a vaccination against three strains of virus has been available at the Health Department to Hancock County residents since November, but will not be effective if administered this late in the flu season.

"We still offer the shots, but three to four weeks are necessary for people to build up the necessary antibodies," Ms. McLain explained.

Children and young adults under age 25 need two shots, each coming one month apart. If vaccinated now, the child's body would need at least two months to build up the antibodies," she added.

She said the three influenza strains prevalent are the Russian Flu (USSR-77), Texas Flu (A-Texas-77), and the Hong Kong Flu (B-Hong Kong-72).

She added no side effects are usually evident as a result of the vaccinations.

Port Commission eyes Stennis Field operator

By LESLIE WILLIAMS
A new fixed base operator to supervise aviation activities at Stennis International Airport in Hancock County will be selected no later than Jan. 22.

Port and Harbor Commission Director Wilson Wehre says the commission's airport committee is presently considering four proposals from prospective operators.

"I encourage everyone in the fixed base operator business to take interest in our facility," states Wehre.

Trans-Am International is presently the fixed base operator at the airfield. Mel Anderson, former fixed base operator, is missing, and presumed dead.

His wife has no desire to continue providing the service of fixed base operator at the airport.

"Trans-Am International has been given proper 30 day notice of termination of their contract. Their contract expires Jan. 18 at which time we (airport committee) will begin negotiations with potential fixed base operators," explains Wehre.

"Thursday, the airport commission will begin interviewing prospective fixed base operators," Wehre said earlier in the week.

Responsibilities of a fixed base operator at the airfield are to provide general aviation services, Wehre says.

Those services include selling aviation gasoline and jet fuel at the airfield, providing mechanical repair service and aircraft tie down space.

Optional services which the operator may provide are charter flights, airplane rental, flight training, vehicle rental, and food and beverage concessions.

Wehre said the operator will pay a basic rental fee for use of facilities at the airport under the operator's contract.

"The operator for the base will be chosen on the basis of his financial abilities to support activity at the airport, experience in aviation activities and with all other things being equal, the best financial offer to the county," the director intones.

Other bidders were Pearl River Paving $37,824 and Graham Construction Co., $57,399. Council took the bids under study.

Council took under study bids from numerous firms on such items as asphalt, pipe, culverts, hot mix, office supplies, electrical supplies, clay gravel, sand, gravel, top soil, gas, tires, batteries, water meters, carbon ribbons, uniforms and even dog warden supplies.

On the City depositor, the Council received bids from Merchants, and Gulf National Bank in addition to Security Savings and Loan Associations. Council asked Joseph Gex, attorney, to study the bank bids.

Council asked Kelly McQueen, city clerk, check bids received from several equipment rental firms and report on who was the lowest bid from their last meeting.

After a study of the bids McQueen reported on the emergency repair bids that Gregory Construction, Crown Equipment and Coast Heavy Equipment were all low bidders on several different types of equipment.

Council accepted bids from the three firms on the items they were low bidders on and will use which ever firm is needed according to the job.

Councilman Fred Wagner said the possibility of using equipment from more than one firm on one project was very slim.

Buddy Broadway also recommended the Council pay Sanitary Land Fill in full for the sewer project in the area of Athletic Drive as the contractor had a few things to do which were completed.

Wagner asked Broadway to submit a request to the Council in writing, also his recommendation on the asphalt surfacing around the schools.

Council accepted the bid from the Sea Coast Echo on legal advertising for the year.

A report by Joe Brown, Inc., engineer on the Bouslog, sewer, extension, attributed a delay in street repair to rain and cold weather.

His report did state that the contractor was on schedule and had until the end of February to finish the job.

Mayor Larry Bennett in his report requested permission from the Council to use Donn Murray as supervisor on the cleaning of the drainage from Spanish, Acres, under the railroad, down Carrie Court, through Christ Episcopal School grounds and through the Brigance property to the beach.

Council asked the mayor to have Murray give them an estimate on how much the project would cost, using the rental bids received by the Council for such work.

Mayor Bennett expressed regret on receiving a letter of resignation from Mrs. Fred Wagner from a city commission.

Bennett went on record thanking Mrs. Wagner for her many contributions to the City during her term.

Mayor Bennett was going to make a recommendation but was asked by Council President James Thrifflay not to at this time as a personal favor to him. The Council accepted Mrs. Wagner's resignation.

Mayor Bennett also asked the Council their feelings about having an Insurance Agent of record for the City and recommended Dick Kosbab of Hancock Insurance Agency.

E. J. Marengo, insurance agent, asked if he could make a comment. "I have known Dick Kosbab for many years and he has held some very high positions with large insurance companies, and even though I am in competition with him, I would have to go along with him as an agent of record."

His knowledge of Commercial Insurance could save the City some money.

Council President Thrifflay said he would like to see it on a rotating basis, among the independent agents.

Councilman Pete Benvenuti said he thought that an insurance agent of record might cause some hard feelings and recommend an outside firm like his company uses to come in for a small fee and check and see if the city has proper coverage in all areas and divide the business among the agents in town.

After further discussion, the Council took the matter under advisement.

Marengo said, "I have been in the insurance business for over 12 years and have never received any of the city's business, and I would like to thank each of you for your views and consideration of all the insurance agents."

"I called Burk and Associates last week and was told the two people I wanted were in Baton Rouge, I left word for them to call me and I am still waiting," was Mayor Bennett's reply when asked if he had contacted them when the Main Street matter came up for discussion.

Council was told by the mayor that the state was not accepting the Main Street project as it is not complete.

After some discussion on the matter, Councilman Wagner requested an informal discussion with the engineering firm of Broadway and Seal.

Wagner reported a resident in the fourth Ward had a home but there was not a sewer tap to be found according to the Utilities Department.

And Council agreed that since the house was there when the sewerage went in the City, that a tap would be supplied at no cost to the owner as the sewer line passed in front of his home.

A holiday schedule was prepared by the City Clerk and was taken under study upon request by the mayor as he hadn't seen it before the meeting.

Council is going to study the possibility of average billing on utilities on a recommendation of Wagner. All Council members were in agreement of the possibility of problems involved in such a venture.

TEMPORARY CLASSROOMS—Bay Junior High eighth grade students settle into a classroom at the First Baptist Church complex which will be the student's new educational facility for the next two months. Students assembled in their usual seating arrangements at the church's education center shortly after 10 a.m. Monday.

specifications must be drawn up for presentation to officials at the Educational Finance Commission in Jackson on Feb. 19.

"We have to go through channels and draw up blueprints and specifications and advertise for bids on the job before we can begin construction," he elaborated.

According to school architect Fred Wagner, all existing plaster ceilings will be replaced with suspended ceilings.

Bay School Superintendent J. D. McCulloch said Wednesday classes at the Junior High are "going fine."

"Things are going fine, now that they have settled down," he said.

He explained deacons of the First Baptist Church and school board members had discussed issues related to the utilization of the six classrooms at the church's educational facilities, and "have reached an oral agreement."

"Everything will be put in writing later," he added.

He said maintenance men and janitors are going to take care of upkeep at the church facilities, and said an administrator will be present at the building at all times.

He also said bids must be taken prior to starting repairs on the school building.

"We have to advertise for three weeks for materials and labor," he explained.

Bids received, along with the plans and specifications on the project will be presented to the EFC in Jackson for approval prior to Feb. 20, he added.

CLASSROOM TRANSITION—Bay Junior High eighth grade students appear joyful during transition to new classrooms at First Baptist Church educational facilities on Main Street Tuesday morning. A need for new classrooms resulted after part of a six ton ceiling in an upstairs classroom at Bay Junior High collapsed Jan. 10 injuring a student. (Staff photo—Leslie Williams)

COTTON TURNED TO GLASS

King Cotton, a wily creature at best, is closing out the 20th century with a scientific feat unmatched since the legendary King Midas turned all that he touched to gold.

Often down but never out, King Cotton recently amazed USDA scientists. Truman Ward and Ruth Benierito at the Southern Regional Research Center by pulling off a near science fiction caper by turning himself to glass before their very eyes. And this is no April's Fool story.

Now that it has happened, only the imaginative scientific community can usher in cotton's ever bright future as a potential new figure in the electronics world.

Overly simplified, what strange thing occurred during experiments at the southern lab is this. The physicist and chemist team discovered that absorptive cotton fibers were capable of taking up both mineral and metallic substances through absorption, and then when superheated to burn off or destroy the natural fibers they left behind a glazed version of the cotton fabric in whatever shape or form, similar to petrification; and no doubt even more impervious to ravages of time, moisture or other naturally destructive conditions.

It all started when Ward and Benierito were adding lead and other heavy metals to cotton fabric to identify specific sites where textile chemicals, soil retardants, flame retardants, and others could be bonded more firmly to the cotton.

Lead was added to the fabric by soaking the cotton in a water solution of sodium plumbite - lead in a water soluble salt form. They got more than they hoped for. The lead content ranged from a few percent of fabric weight to an unexpected and quite high 40 percent. Apparently cotton has a natural affinity for lead salt.

While trying to burn the fabric for analytical purposes an extraordinary thing happened. Instead of turning to ashes the treated fabric turned to glass at a temperature of about 1100 degrees while in contact with its glass container. Silica to petrify the cotton actually migrated from the glass container into the cotton even though the glass did not melt; the scientific team reports. And this last bit of solid induction admittedly chokes up this writer's mind.

On with this allegedly true scientific tale nevertheless. Before they had time to exclaim "Eureka!" they discovered that further heating at controlled temperatures created variously colored cotton glass. Heating to about 750 degrees turned the blackened fabric to a reddish yellow and then greenish yellow. Continued heating to 1100 degrees produced the clear, glassy material.

A scientific bonus sprang from the fact that the glassy materials made from a cotton with a low lead content have the unique property of easily and firmly bonding together glasses of different composition that usually are very difficult to join. After cooling, the bonds are so strong that the under applied force the joined glasses will rupture while the bond remains intact.

Still more importantly for the future, electrical conductivity can be imparted to the glassy films simply by covering the treated fabric with aluminum foil before it is heated like a potato backed in wood ashes for cooking.

During heating the foil completely disappears into the glassy film. Now the team is dickering around with the amount of aluminum added to the film to achieve varied electrical properties of interest to the electronics industry.

Back to the color bit, the researchers find that while the glassy films are usually colorless, they can be converted to gold, purple or gray by exposing them to an open flame. Interestingly, the color acts as a one-way mirror.

Now that King Cotton has entered another door it will be interesting to wait for new products which may even offer hope in making highly efficient solar energy concentrators. Or, if we might dream about the possibilities a bit, maybe someday eye glasses will be available at your local 100 percent cotton store where on a nearby counter may be found a sideline of glass eyes complete with colored lashes fit for a queen!

Written OK needed to hunt buffer zone

Officials at Hancock County's National Space Technology Laboratories recently stressed that the 128,330-acre area known as the 'buffer zone' is owned by individuals and private concerns, and hunters, campers, and woodcutters entering these areas without first obtaining written permission from land owners is illegal.

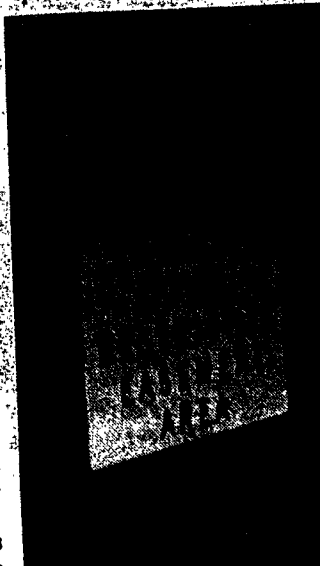

"The landowners retain all rights to this land except for the construction of habitable structures," a spokesman for NSTL said.

"Landowners use this land for timbering, farming, cattle grazing, and other purposes as they see fit. Trespassers are subject to prosecution," the official added.

38 signs in various locations around the buffer zone have been erected by NSTL to inform the public of the perimeter of the area.

"To insure enforcement of these restrictions, property in the buffer zone is constantly under the surveillance of local law enforcement officials, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, and NSTL's security force," the NSTL spokesman added.

FISHIN' TIPS

from...Tom Mann

One of the most asked questions in fishing clinics is: "How does a fisherman know which color lure to use when there are dozens to choose from? Does it really make that much difference to a fish?"

Well, I know it's confusing to a beginner but let me assure you that a selection of colors is important. You see, a fish's eye is made like ours, of rods and cones, and contains a substance called rhodopsin which color-blind people lack. So, fish can see not only color but tests show they can distinguish shades of colors.

No one is smart enough to know which color the fish are going to hit. Many things enter into it such as how much light there is where the fish are, water clarity, sun angles, etc. So, I begin with basic patterns like natural scales, yellows, shad, coachdog, chrome, and black. I keep changing and let the fish tell me which one they want.

When the water gets real dingy, or turbid, I think sound instead of color and use noisy lures that rattle, or those that have a vibrating spinner on the tail. Fish hear these and locate them through sonar sense.

BRER TOM'S CLOSING TIP: Remember, you will have good fishing days and bad ones. If it weren't for the bad ones the good ones wouldn't be nearly so much fun!

REPAIRING VINYL

If your boat has seen a number of seasons of service, your vinyl cushions, covers and other items could stand sprucing up.

If the surface is merely dirty, washing with ordinary soap and water followed by rinsing and wiping will do the job well and safely. The Mercruiser stern drive boating experts remind you to avoid using abrasive compounds.

Visit automotive stores and look for vinyl upholstery cleaning products. If your cleaning problem does not respond to soap and water.

Small punctures can often be repaired just about invisibly. It's done with repair kits made up for the purpose.

A backing piece is poked under the rip and the tear is covered with a color-matched liquid.

A strip of material having a similar grain is pressed onto this and heat applied to cure the liquid, leaving it with a pattern almost or even identical to that of the surrounding area.

Vinyl objects that have suffered weather exposure can usually be brightened up with vinyl paints.

Soccer tournament slated

A double elimination soccer tournament is slated for Jan. 24, the outcome to determine the champion of the recently formed Mississippi Soccer League.

The first round matches will feature fourth-ranked Notre Dame against first-place Our Lady of Victories at the OLV field.

No. 2 St. Stanislaus hosts third-ranked Coast Episcopal at Rock-A-Chow stadium Jan. 24.

OLV in Pascagoula leads the league with an undefeated 6-0 record, followed by St. Stanislaus with a 3-2-1. Coast Episcopal with an 0-3-3 tally, and Notre Dame of Biloxi with 0-4-2.

Playtime in the 'good old days' demanded creative imagination

By S. GRADY THIGPEN

By present day standards there was not much to entertain people, especially young people, back in the good old days.

There were practically none of the many means of entertainment back then that we find so much today.

As Sam Russ, born in 1880, said, "We had to make our own fun when I was a boy. It was not brought to us over radio, T-V, talking machines or newspapers."

However, people back then did not want for entertainment, play and relaxation.

There were few parties for young people during most of the year but at Christmas time there would be old time square dances, candy pullings and parties.

For a dance there would be an old-time fiddler, or maybe a French Harp to furnish the music. These old time fiddlers and harpists had music in their souls.

I myself remember that about 65 to 70 years ago I used to go to these old time frolics.

They usually had an old man to play the fiddle. This old man loved his fiddle and delighted in playing it. I say, fiddle for I had never even heard the word violin back then. A fiddle was still a fiddle.

Sam Walter Foss, a favorite old time poet with me, wrote

SEAM unites fibers of state government

The State Employees Association will be elected by Association of Mississippi (SEAM) will hold its fourth annual convention, Jan. 25-26 at the Holiday Inn Downtown in Jackson.

According to SEAM's President, Dr. Bobby Stacy and Executive Director Ken Frazier, several outstanding Mississippians have accepted invitations to speak including some prominently mentioned gubernatorial hopefuls.

The convention banquet will be held Thursday night, Jan. 25, at the Holiday Inn Downtown with entertainment being provided by Orville Hooker from Jackson and the "Naturals" from Mississippi College under the direction of Dr. Jack L. Lyall.

The status of bills affecting state employees introduced in the current legislative session will be discussed and directors for districts 4, 5, 6, 7, and 10 along with other officers of the

the following about an old time fiddle:

"That's music, like the harpers played before the ancient kings.

When the old man takes the fiddle and goes feeling for the strings—

There's laughter, choked with tear drops when the old man sings.

And we press around to hear, as he sits there in the middle."

Falling to get a fiddler, the dancers would dance to the music of a French harp, often played by one of the dancers.

While the music in the old days where I grew up was crude by present day standards, it was rendered with intense feeling and lively rhythm that went straight to the heart of all who heard it.

The music we had in the old days was not "canned music" or imitated music such as you hear so much of today—it was the real thing, more charged with the emotions, and expressed more the feelings whether tender, gay or sad.

The music I like is the one that produced for the very love of it, like the old man on the fiddle, not sung or played according to some set pattern, or in imitation of some star performer, with little or no feeling or sentiment in it.

By my standards, which I admit may be very poor, most of the music I hear over the radio and T-V does not measure up—it sounds more like it is being played, or sung, just in order to get paid off when the program is over with, and not because of love of the music.

Naturalness, individuality, originality, and feeling mean much more and are much more interesting to me than the finished performance of some mechanical like initiator.

When the music began at the old time folk there would be much action on the floor. The old time square dance, with the caller, gave plenty opportunity for the dancers to shine and to show off their skill.

Always there was a young fellow or two who did their best to impress those present, especially the ladies.

After a time there'd be a lull in the dancing. Then, the candy pulling would begin and what a big time they would have!

They would get candy on their clothes, on their faces, in their hair, and who would care? They had a big time.

Usually there would be couples present who had "got that way" about one another. They would pair off in the darkest corners of the room.

If not too cold they would sit out in the dark hall or on the door steps. Others seemed to understand and happily left them alone.

There would most likely be very little conversation between these couples. They would just sit there. But they got their messages across to one another: just the same—meaningful silences and affectionate looks saying more than mere words could possibly say.

A lot of courting was done with practically no talking.

At any rate, the methods of these young people got results. Pretty soon there'd be a new house going up on a newly cleared spot. A little later there would be invitations to a wedding.

A wedding was a big event in the old days. Everybody would attend, and the young people would go to the Chivaree that night.

And to complete this part of this story, a family of fine youngsters would soon be coming along to take the places of the older people who have the old habit of passing away.

The young people did not lack for something to do. In the spring, summer and fall, there were all kinds of outdoor activities. The boys were kept busy working the vegetable gardens, the fields of corn, potatoes and other things.

A big job year round for boys was keeping the home supplied with wood with which to cook year round and to heat the home in winter.

It took a lot of wood to supply a home in those days—it had to be cut, hauled and stacked ready for use. The boys would go swimming in summer, and hunt and fish year round for the sport of it and to furnish food for the family.

There was trapping, too, in season. One thing for sure, the boys were kept plenty busy by these old time parents.

Th girls back then did not have the liberties that girls now enjoy but they were also kept busy with plenty to do.

They did the sewing for the family—many of them wove the cloth on old time spinning wheels. They regularly had quilting bees.

They canned some things and they dried fruits for winter use. They kept house for the family, doing all the family washing, ironing, etc.

Some of the homes in old Gainesville and Pearlington had croquet courts, according to Sam Russ. This was a game played mostly by the girls and sometimes by courting couples.

One old man who lived in Pearlington as a boy said, "When a boy and girl got to playing croquet together, you could usually look out for wedding pretty soon."

He said the croquet playing stopped after the wedding—it had served its purpose.

Pitching horse shoes was a popular game. Another diversion was, pitching dollars. When I was a boy you could pass most any house in our neighborhood on Sundays and see men pitching dollars.

There are too many other things now to make these old pastimes interesting.

"Hat-Grab" was a game that the boys liked to play with a newcomer to Gainesville. Those who knew the game of "Hat-Grab" would talk about the great fun in this game to any newcomer that came to play "Hat-Grab," the boys would dig a hole in the round about 8 inches in diameter and about 6 inches deep. Then each boy would put something of value in the hole—was a 50 cents piece, another a good pocket knife and other things of value.

They would explain to the greenhorn that a hat would be placed over the hole, and then at a given signal, the hat would be raised and that each boy would grab for something in the hole, and that each boy would become the owner of what he had grabbed.

The green horn would of course put in something of very little value, fully expecting to grab something worth much more than what he had put in.

With everything in the hole, the hat was placed over it. Just at this point, they would remember that another boy wanted to play and that he would be there in just a minute. In the meantime they would go get a drink of water, or do something else to divert attention.

While their backs were turned, another boy would uncover another hole exactly like the one in which they had put the things to be grabbed for.

He would then remove the hat from the hole it covered with money, knives, etc. in it. He would then place the hat over the new hole. In the new hole a good sized pile of cow dung had been placed in advance.

With everything ready, the boys would gather around the hat on their knees and wait for the signal to make their grabs.

The count would begin, one, two—every boy would have his hand reached out to just the right distance to make the quickest grab for the most valuable article...the excitement would mount...three...GRAB.

Of course, the boys in the know would pretend to grab while the new boy would make a real grab.

From previous experience, they knew to get out of the way for in every former case the victim, when he realized he had been tricked, would try to smear the other boys.

There would be screams of laughter heard all over Gainesville.

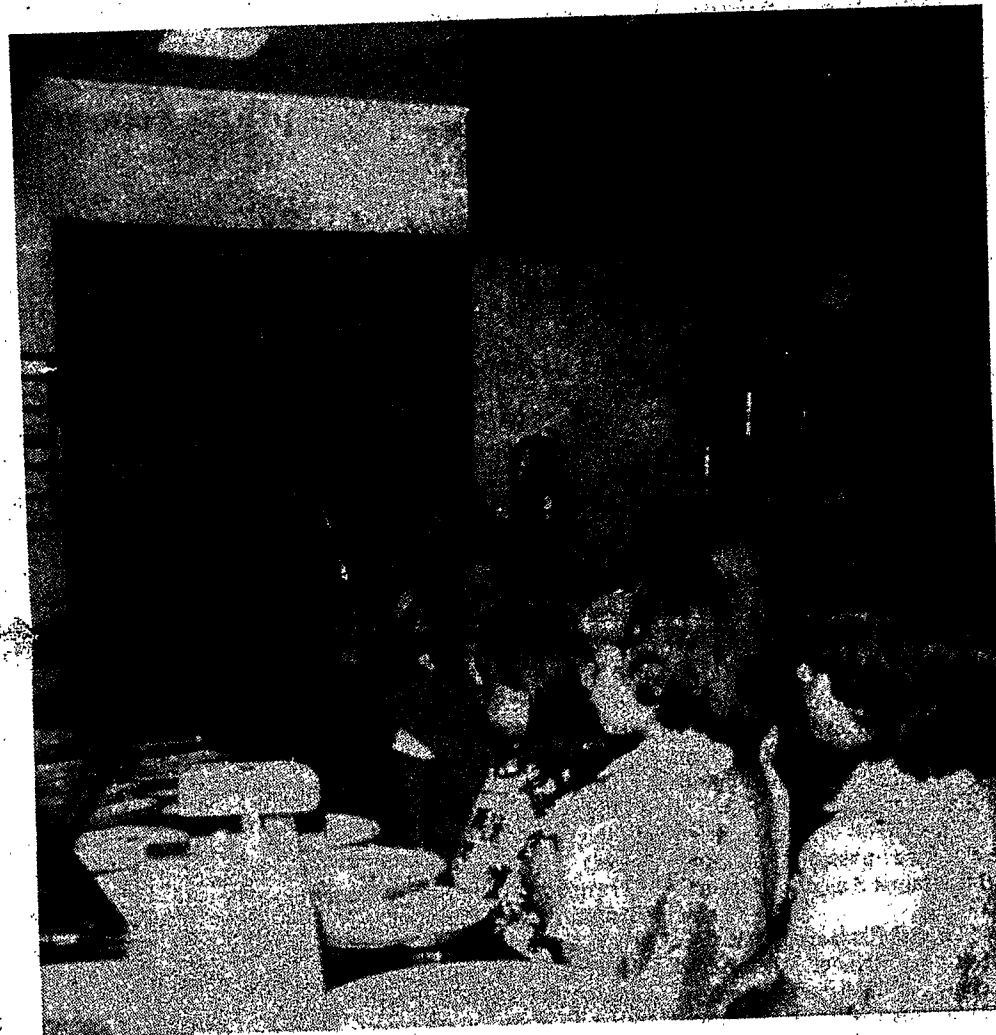

I don't know where the word Chivaree originated—I could not find it in the dictionary. When a person married in this general area there was usually a chivaree. Sam Russ and other old people have told me that from old times a chivaree was considered part of the wedding activities.

If you don't know what a chivaree is, I'll try to tell you about the only one I ever attended.

A big crowd of people surrounded the house where the newly married couple were on their wedding night.

At a given signal, all heck broke loose: bells rang, guns and pistols were shot, fire crackers popped, everybody yelled and shouted and beat on pans and other things to make noise.

After sometime of this, a lamp was lit in the house and everybody invited in to a feast that had been prepared in advance.

NASA honors Waveland scientist with Exceptional Service Medal

E. Lee Tilton, III, of Waveland, deputy director of NSTL's Earth Resources Laboratory (ERL), recently received NASA's Exceptional Service Medal - the second highest service award NASA gives.

The award was presented in recognition of Tilton's outstanding achievements in managing the development and application of remote sensing technology.

"His management and leadership of the Earth Resources Laboratory has contributed to the vast understanding of the value of space technology to man's increasing needs for environmental and natural resources," said Dr. Robert A. Frosch, NASA administrator, at a NASA-wide awards ceremony at Johnson Space Center.

The Earth Resources Laboratory is involved in developing remote sensing technology using satellite and aircraft data for applications by users such as other federal agencies and the states in their natural resources inventory planning and management activities.

As deputy director, Tilton assists in the formulation and implementation of laboratory programs and policies regarding the development, application and transfer of remote sensing techniques for land and coastal resource inventory and management.

He received his bachelor's degree and master's degree in aeronautics and astronautics from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) and was a member of the MIT research staff from 1960-1964.

In 1964 he joined the NASA Apollo Program at the Manned Spacecraft Center in Houston, Texas and participated in programs involving real time Apollo support, mission anomaly analysis, and development type testing and evaluation of advanced spacecraft control systems.

In early 1971 Tilton joined the newly formed Earth Resources Laboratory at the National Space Technology Laboratories as chief of the Instrumentation and Operations group.

In late 1971 he was appointed chief of the Sea Remote Sensing Applications Group at ERL and was responsible for remote sensing technique development and the application of these techniques to problems in coastal processes and marine resources.

Tilton also served as chairman of the Marine Resources Panel in the NASA Earth Resources Program from 1973 to 1975. He was appointed deputy director of ERL in October, 1974.

Tilton recently returned from Dubrovnik, Yugoslavia where he presented a paper at the 29th Congress of the International Astronautical Federation.

The paper was titled "Application of Space Remote Sensing Technology to Living Marine Resources in Coastal Zones."

Tilton and his wife, Audrey, have three children, Lee, David and Diane.

Mrs. Tilton is an administrative secretary in the Waveland City Hall.

The sergeant, a student training advisor with a unit of the Air Training Command previously served at Camp Red Cloud, Republic of Korea. Sergeant Ladner, a 1969 graduate of Hancock North Central High School, attended Pearl River Junior College.

SGT D.L. HUFF

Marine Sergeant Dennis L. Huff, son of Janada J. Montgomery of Route 3, Box 246, Jordan River Road, Bay St. Louis, was awarded the Good Conduct Medal.

The Good Conduct Medal signifies faithful and obedient service during a three-year period. To earn it, enlisted Marines must achieve and maintain an unblemished conduct record for the entire period.

Huff is currently serving with 1st Marine Division, Marine Corps Base, Camp Pendleton, Calif.

He joined the Marine Corps in September, 1975.

Pass Library work explores Presidential vacation land

By FLORENCE ROBBINS
Library Volunteer

St. Simon's Memoirs, the newest book by Eugenia Price, offers much more than good reading. It brings us once more into the world of Georgia's golden isles, where President Carter vacations. It provides a fund of information and examples of the methods and hard work which go into the writing of a book.

But most of all it furnishes facts, pictures and anecdotes and historical characters in her St. Simon's trilogy.

It made us want to read them again, which we had just done with keener enjoyment than the first time. This is partly due to the fact that they were written in reverse historical order.

Lighthouse should be read first, followed by New Moon Rising and Beloved Infidel. Read them once - or twice. Men like them, too. Ours did.

Professor William Lyone Phelps once told of a Yale student who came into his study, surveyed the crowded book shelves from floor to ceiling and asked, "Have you read ALL these books?" "Some of them twice" was the reply.

One may be stimulated to read a book a second time in various ways - by another book, as in the St. Simon's novels; by a casual remark about a book; by the appearance of a new edition, by a movie or TV presentation. A librarian recently said, "I've just read The Secret Garden again and found I loved it as much as when I was a child."

We decided to do the same, partly for the pleasure of reading an old favorite and partly because it was under consideration for our reading group at Miramar.

The choice for Miramar for the present, however, was Lady Jane, largely because it is laid in New Orleans, city familiar and beloved by the listeners.

We have found that familiar locale appeals strongly in this story hour. In this session one lady found that she knew the Rue des Bon Enfants, where much of the story takes place and that its name had been changed.

Both books, stories of little girls at the turn of the century, have been brought out by the publishers in new, attractive editions with new illustrations. Lady Jane first appeared in St. Nicholas Magazine.

The blue heron which plays such an important part in Lady Jane still inhabits the area for we saw one on the bayou and one on the beach the day the book was started. For those who read them once, perhaps a long time ago, we recommend a second reading. Add the third favorite Anne of Green Gables by L. M. Montgomery, still widely read in Canada.

The author of Lady Jane, Mrs. C. V. Jamison, was a native of Nova Scotia but spent here later years in New Orleans. The Secret Garden is currently on TV, beautifully acted with an English cast. When we found Morning Becomes Electra was coming on PBS, we obtained a copy from the library. That, too, has been a magnificent portrayal, recalling the original New York company, as we hung breathlessly on the subtle lines and gestures.

We then had to read Agamemnon again, as well as a brief study of the Oedipus Complex recalled from psychology courses. We enjoyed the Agamemnon from the Great Books text, which is in the library, minus the guilty conscience of reading a translation, however, excellent when the original Greek was our assignment.

It is interesting that the Greek Books course reached the Agamemnon at about the same time that Mourning Becomes Electra.

"Series" books often bear re-reading particularly if they come out in new editions.

The Pass Christian Library has a new and complete edition of the popular "Jalna" books. Re-reading them means one can get them in the proper sequence and perhaps find one which was overlooked.

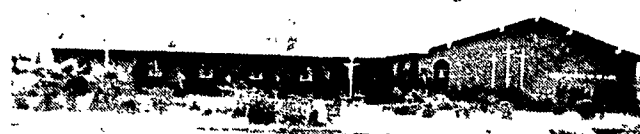

Again re-reading may be more enjoyable than the first time.

One child we knew often went right back to the beginning and read a book a second time. But the teacher assured the concerned parent that this was normal for some readers.

We think most people see something like the magnificent production of Les Miserables and think "it is years since I have read that."

Then off they go into hours of nostalgia and reading worth the time spent on the book - the first time - or the second.

USM offers National Teacher Examinations

The National Teacher Examinations (NTE) will be given at the University of Southern Mississippi on Feb. 17.

Scores from the exam are used by states for certification of teachers, by school systems, for selection and identification of leadership qualities and by colleges as part of their graduation requirements.

The Educational Testing Service prepares and administers the tests which are designed to measure knowledge acquired from professional and general education and from 16 subject-matter fields.

Deadline for registration for the NTE is Jan. 25.

Bulletins describing registration procedures and containing registration forms are available from the National Teacher Examinations, Educational Testing Service, Box 911, Princeton, NJ 08541 or from Dr. Willie Earl Cooley, Director of Student Teaching, Room 107, Education and Psychology Building on the USM campus. (Tel. 266-4161)

St. Ann's Altar Society will hold its monthly luncheon-social at noon Wednesday, January 24, in parish hall. Donation will be $1.50 per person.

The public is invited.

Public school students preparing to receive the Sacrament of Confirmation will meet Sunday, January 21, in St. Ann's parish hall after 9:15 a.m. Mass.

keeping you in touch

By F. M. Kyle, Jr.
Gulf Coast District Manager

When you need emergency help, you need it fast. That's why Bay St. Louis and Waveland officials, and South Central Bell, are introducing "911" for around-the-clock emergency police, fire and ambulance service.

When you dial "911" you will immediately be connected with a special emergency telephone answered day and night by people trained to help you. For routine calls to fire, police or ambulance units you may still use the old number. Tell your whole family-including children-about this new service. "911" Using it could save your life.

Reach out and touch those you love on birthdays and anniversaries with a surprise long distance phone call. By dialing the call yourself and by choosing the time that you call, you can keep the cost low. Calls you dial yourself, the One-Plus way, cost less than operator-assisted calls. So dial direct and save money.

You can save even more by dialing your One-Plus long distance calls during the bargain evening, night, and weekend discount periods. When you dial One-Plus calls nights from 11 p.m. until 8 a.m. and on weekends from 11 p.m. Friday till 5 p.m. Sunday, you save 60 percent over weekday rates.

Or dial your One-Plus calls Sunday through Friday evenings from 5 p.m. till 11 p.m. and save 35 percent over weekday rates.

Reach out and touch those you love with a long distance call. It'll make their day - and yours!

*One-Plus rates do not apply to Zero-Plus dialed calls, operator-handled calls, coin telephone calls, or calls from a hotel or motel.

**Discounts apply to total charges on One-Plus calls, and to additional minute charges only on operator-assisted calls and person-to-person calls.
